Newsware™

Letter From The Editor:

Welcome to Triware Network Systems monthly Newsware, bringing you the latest in Information Technology. In this issue, we would like to share our view of the data restore versus data recovery. There is only a very small percentage of business spend their IT budget on practicing data recovery. Please also feel free to e-mail us with helpful links, upcoming events, topics you'd like to learn more about & questions for our engineers. Thanks for reading!

It Is Not About What You Restore But What You Recover!

The most common thinking when it comes to Backup vs. Recovery is that the backup process is what is most important. In reality, having the ability to recover fully is what is paramount. Unfortunately, IT professionals rarely fully test their systems' ability to recover. Many spend most of their effort on the guidelines and implementation of the backup process and on determining how long it takes, were there errors reported in the process, etc. Then, when the time comes that a recovery is needed, they find out...
