Have a Greener World - Modern Technologies & Global Warming

There is no longer any doubt now that burning fossil fuels in any form contributes to global warming. And powering electrical appliances requires burning fossil fuel to generate the needed electricity. According to Consumer Reports, putting a computer on system standby or hibernation mode 12 hours out of every 24 would save about 576 pounds of CO2 annually. Certainly turning the computer off saves even more energy. The same power save mode is now...
